Latin Wins 104th Game

by Doris Tom and Kate Weldon

The 104th Gridiron Classic went exactly as the Latin fans had hoped. The snow stayed away so the Pack could play on Thanksgiving Day. Latin's supporters, including alumni and faculty, packed the stands of Nickerson Field.

English has won once in the '80s, and that had only been their second victory in fifteen years. Nevertheless, this game wasn't going to be easy. The football season had been disappointing, and the team was hindered by injuries. Starters Mike Hamilton and Gerry Noble were hurt at practice on the turf at Nickerson.

When the teams jogged onto the field the problems were forgotten and the crowd erupted in cheers. Our co-captains, Brian Allen and Brendan Dever, went to midfield for the coin toss. English chose to receive.

The game was scoreless until the end of the second quarter. Senior halfback Adilson Cardoza ran in for the touchdown and also kicked for the extra point. The wolfpack held the 7-0 advantage into halftime. They expanded on the lead with a strong drive up the field that included a thirty-two-yard gain by Cardoza. Junior fullback Allen Cooper drove in four yards for the touchdown, and Cardoza kicked again for the extra point.

The Bulldogs were running out of time; their quarterback, Tracy Carter, brought the team to the two yard line. They ran in for the touchdown with twenty-nine seconds left in the fourth quarter, but the two-point conversion was unsuccessful.

The Wolfpack got the ball back and let the clock run down. The Latin sideline emptied to celebrate the 14-6 victory.

(e) None of the Above

Regina Lau

On October 31, 1990 a press conference was held at the Boston Sheraton Hotel to disclose the plans for the revision of the College Board exams.

SAT-I, the new name for the current Scholastic Aptitude Test, will have major changes in both the verbal and math sections. The three hour exam includes 75-90 minute verbal reasoning, 60-75 minute mathematical reasoning, and 30 minute pretesting.

In the verbal section, analogies and sentence completion questions will continue to exist. However, vocabulary will be tested in the context of the reading passages rather than in the form of antonyms. At least half of the verbal section will concentrate on critical reading, in which the questions are made to better assess the students' ability to interpret, analyze and evaluate the reading passages.

Changes in the SAT-I math section is the inclusion of non-multiple choice questions requiring students to produce their own answers. Calculators will also be allowed, but not required for the exam.

The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) will also incorporate the changes in the SAT-I. It will include more critical reasoning and the requirement of student produced answers. The first new PSAT/NMSQT will be administered in October 1993.

The new SAT-II will be an expansion of the current Achievement Exams. Testing of Japanese and of Chinese as well as of proficiency in English as a second language will also be included in the new SAT-II, which will begin in the spring of 1994 along with the new SAT-I.

These changes in the College Board exams are aimed at aiding colleges with ranking students. The tests are also designed to help reinforce a more vigorous high school curriculum. The SAT-II subject tests will assist high school counselors in planning for students' high school and college careers.

The idea of a computerized adaptive testing has been recommended by the commission. These exams will allow each student to take a test uniquely made for his or her own level. The commission hopes to introduce a fully computer-integrated testing program by the year 2000.

Don't Drink The Water

Beth Dunfey

On Thursday, November 29, Friday, November 30, and Saturday, December 1, the Boston Latin School Drama Club presented Woody Allen's two-act comedy "Don't Drink the Water". The play, set in an American Embassy behind the Iron Curtain, depicts a "typical" American family suspected of being spies who are seeking asylum from the Communist police, and their escapades in trying to get back home to Newark. The play combines Woody Allen's psychotic sense of humor with romance, danger, and international intrigue.

The Drama Club is almost entirely student-run. Officers Beth Dunfey and Colin Riley directed the play, which starred Irene Daly and Ian Gold as the classic American couple from New Jersey; Inga Ellertson as their lovely, intelligent, and artsy daughter; Brendan Hughes as her love interest and the Embassy's temporary boss; and Rolo Larsen as the Embassy's "Holy Houdini", fugitive priest Father Drobney. In the three nights of the production the Drama Club made approximately $1500 through

by Hilary Krieger

Last spring, under editors Jessica Dello Russo and Max M. Withers, an edition of the Register was produced but not distributed. Now, under editors Ian M. Gold and Rosalie R. O'Brien, the Register will finally come out. The long delay was caused by a photograph on the cover. A Register editor says that the administration's preventing the distribution of the magazine is just "a show of force".

That photo shows a young boy relieving himself into a public fountain. It was taken by Ben Mayers, who has graduated from BLS.

A BLS administrator says that there is a possibility of a lawsuit. An unflattering photograph must have a release signed by the person in the photo allowing it to be printed. Since one was never obtained, the boy, if he identified himself, could sue BLS. "The chances of this boy seeing the photograph is [sic] miniscule. This is just the loophole that the administration found," according to Ian Gold. However, loophole as it may have been, something had to be done to solve the problem. So, on the cover, the boy's face is blocked out and the word "CENSORED" runs across this. Everyone seems happy with the result, but the magazine has not yet been distributed (though it may be out by the time this Argo is).

Mr. Contompasis did not censor this picture, although he said "he would not hesitate to if the situation warranted it." About the picture and censorship in general, he commented, "You don't just arbitrarily censor something... I'm very sensitive to the fine line that suggests that censorship should not be done arbitrarily, but with the best interests of the school [in mind]."

Others in the administration who were interviewed gave two main reasons for not using the picture. The first is that because of the photo's content it is not appropriate for the cover of the magazine. The second is that there is no need for a photograph in a literary magazine. Originally the Register contained articles and was similar to the Argo. Recently that has changed as it has become a literary magazine, not, as some feel, one for pictures. There are,

WAR?

Opinion by Sam Martland

On Thursday, November 29, the United Nations Security Council passed a resolution making January 15 the deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. After that date all UN members are allowed to use force against the forces of Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein. The resolution was proposed by the US. President Bush now has the authorization he has wanted since August: he may start an internationally sanctioned war. I would submit that he should not do so unless we are attacked.

At the current rate of reinforcement, there will be about 375,000 American servicemen in the Middle East as part of operation Desert Shield. There will be at most 112,000 Allied troops deployed, with the largest contingent being the 35,000 Egyptians. We will outnumber our allies 3:1; non-Arabs will outnumber Arabs 4:1. Clearly, the formal support of the world does not include its armies.

The only other time the UN has sanctioned military action against a member nation is the Korean War. Then, too, the forces were largely American. However, General MacArthur was appointed the United Nations commander; there was a unified command. The present resolution sets up no command. It simply authorizes any interested nation to beat on Iraq. Chaos is likely as the various armies in the field refuse to cooperate.

The defense department estimates from 24 American dead in surgical air strikes to 3,000 dead and 13,000 wounded in a ten day war. Of course, the accompanying deaths of Iraqi and Kuwaiti civilians are ignored, as are those of Iraqi and Allied soldiers. Also ignored is the very real possibility of a longer war, as our mobile forces are bogged down on the Iraqi front. Tens of thousands would die on both sides. America might reinstate the draft; in such a war we could all be on the front lines.

Economically, the cost of a war would be great as well. Money spent on "defense" would have to come from somewhere, perhaps causing deaths at home as social programs were cut, or a useless rise in taxes.

These, then, are the costs. Now what are we considering fighting for? Officially, we want to defend Saudi Arabia and liberate Kuwait in the interest of democracy. Both countries, of course, are feudal monarchies. In Saudi Arabia, women are hidden away and treated primitively. They can't even drive. Religious minorities are not tolerated; our troops can't even get Bibles in the mail. In my book, such an arhaic system is not worth thousands of American lives, or any at all. Saddam Hussein's government may be even more obnoxious, but that doesn't give us the right or obligation to destroy it; we allow many totalitarian dictatorships to survive, so there isn't even a precedent. Unofficially, we may be fighting for many reasons: Americans want cheap oil, which they are unwilling to conserve. President Bush may hope that a quick victory will get him reelected. The defense suppliers may want contracts. Newspapers may hope for sensational stories. None of these reasons justifies invading a foreign nation.

It would be impractical and improper for the United States to attack Iraq. We cannot police to world, we should not fight for things we ought to do without, and under no circumstances should we ever start a war. Think carefully; some of you could be killing or killed by this time next year.

The above article(s) is not necessarily the opinion of The Argo or of Boston Latin School

Opinion by Robert Doherty

The United States, for the first time in over sixteen years, is faced with the threat of a major armed confrontation. Now is the time for us as Americans to choose where we stand. As for myself, I believe that if the situation does not resolve itself, we must resort to that most odious of means to remove Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, war. The consequences of this action are so great that we must not enter into a conflict of this nature for transient or frivolous causes.

The President has enumerated many arguments for our presence in Saudi Arabia, ranging from oil to "preserving the American way of life". I would like to focus on several relevant reason that have been set forth by President Bush and on a couple that are purely of my own design. The atrocities committed by Iraqi forces in occupied Kuwait are reprehensible violations of human rights and international law. The wholesale slaughter of innocent women and children is a war crime that cannot go unpunished. Saddam Hussein is a man who has little or no grip on reality. He has told the same lies to his people so many times that he has started to believe them himself. He has admitted that his goal in life is the establishment of an Arab super-state with himself at the helm. A man with such ambition and similar military might started a tiny conflict that caused the death of 45 million people. If [British Prime Minister] Chamberlain had not been so eager for "peace in our time", Adolf Hitler could have been foiled before he had a chance to begin. The Iraqi leadership has also expressed a desire that should alarm most Americans: the elimination of our staunchest ally, Israel. The Israeli people have shown their support and friendship countless times in the past. Now is not the time to desert them. The following reasons, in my humble opinion, are paramount in justifying the use of all means necessary to liberate Kuwait. For the pas twenty years the United States and the Emirate of Kuwait have enjoyed a beneficial and genuine friendship. If we desert the Kuwaiti people in their hour of need, what kind of message will that send to our other allies? Why should they then not believe that we will refuse to come to their rescue when they have no one else to turn to? My other point of contention is that the United Nations was formulated with this very situation in mind. In a post Cold War world, the United Nations has the chance to become a viable and effective organization for maintaining world peace and international cooperation. The Security Council, in numerous resolutions (the latest of which called for the use of "all means necessary"), has condemned the actions of Iraq and called for the return of the rightful government of Kuwait to power. This is an historic opportunity. If Baghdad is defeated in its attempt to rape Kuwait, the next government that contemplates such action will think twice.

Now that I have expressed my sentiments on why we must go to war, I would like to turn to a related topic on the home front. As I have discussed this unfolding stuatuin around the school, I have heard a good deal of support for war and the President. And yet, when I bring up the possibility of a reinstitution of the draft, and ask "hawks" what they would do if drafted, the most common answer is that they would dodge the draft. I find this hypocrisy most depicable. It is absolutely revolting that someone who is willing to send a person who is not rich enough or intelligent enough to get into college to die for his country considers himself too prominent to serve. I would not write this column if I was not willing to answer the call of my country.

In the heat of all our controversy, we must not lose sight of why this happened in the first place. Saddam Hussein owed a large amount of money to Kuwait as a result of the Iran-Iraq war. He decided that if he could not pay his creditor, he could escape his responsibility by removing his creditor from the face of the earth. Now he has forced the world and the Iraqi people to pay.

Sarah Whipple Sixies: Bullies?

Boston Latin's youngest students were in great need of a structured social unit that would provide stability and friendship to them, while they were adjusting to their new school. It is common consent that sixie year is very trying, in some ways more than in other years.

Not only do the sixies enter into a foreign environment; a new school, surrounded by 2,000 strangers, but they also must contend with the ridicule that is theirs for merely being the youngest class. How many times do you remember being forced to the back of the lunch line or being nearly run down by other students far larger than yourself? Do you remember the ssss...noises that jeered at you as you passed? Probably the worst feeling of all of us was the isolation you felt not only within your entire school but most specifically within your own class. In about 75% of your classes you were without the slightest notion of who the person who sat in front of you or behind you. It is awfully frustrating, as well, to need an assignment and be unable to call anyone for it.

Of course times have changed ironically five years later I am still being practically knocked over. Only now I find it is the sixies

Recycling

by Christina Martin

After numerous attempts by the Student Council and many diligent efforts of concerned students this fall, a paper recycling project has begun at Boston Latin! Inspired by the Boston-England exchange this past summer, I contacted Sterling Packaging in New Hampshire for information regarding the project. The decision to use Sterling Packaging arrived after comparing it to other companies. Their representatives, who are very helpful and understanding of the needs of such a large student body, deserve our greatest efforts in making the project a success.

The cooperation of the students and faculty alike, including the janitorial staff, has been tremendous. It is definitely encouraging to know that we, as students, are not only becoming aware of environmental issues, but are working to solve them. The amount of paper generated by this school annually is nearly a ton. Recycling it will produce enough paper that would otherwise cost us yet another tree. This tree now can continue to provide shade on a hot day, and food and shelter for animals.

I would like to thank the staff and students for their attentive efforts and cooperation thus far. Please continue to regard this project as your contribution to the environment and keep up the good work!

If there are any questions, see me, Christina Martin in 120.

Sister City Association

Athena Stamatou

The Association is a non-profit group of volunteers interested in promoting exchange with Strasbourg, France. The volunteers work with active committees for educational exchange, science and medicine, hospitality, culture, business, and community gardens. The Association works closely with the Mayor's Office of Business and Cultural Development, Massport, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the French Consulate-General, French Cultural Services, and the Francophile institutions of the city in promoting French culture.

This year the Association is expanding to include a youth group, which will include students of French at both Latin School and Latin Academy. Planned events include field trips, films, and French meals.

The sister city relationship has existed for thirty years. Since its inception it has grown to include student, cultural, business, horticultural, art, musical, and exchange programs. To mark the anniversary this year, the sister cities are sponsoring a photo contest, with first prize a trip to Strasbourg including round trip air fare and hotel costs.

Time to Care

by Fannie Fong

Imagine yourself in a classroom full of other children. You look around hopefully, but not a familiar face is to be seen. They are all strangers to you, and you can't understand what they're saying, for they speak a foreign language. It is called "English".

Moving from one country to another is a very trying experience with problems of making new friends and adapting to a new culture, which includes learning a new language. Many immigrant children are placed in grades according to their ages regardless of the extent of their knowledge of English. So what can one do to help these children?

One answer lies in the form of the Maryknoll Sisters Center Tutoring Program. This after school program is run by Sister Ruth Marie, who speaks both Cantonese and English fluently and helps in tutoring the children. It is one of the programs associated with the Key Club of Boston Latin School. Everyday from 2:30 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. Monday through Thursday students from BLS proceed to the Center located in Chinatown across the New England Medical Center. There they spend an hour or two in helping immigrant children learn English.

The volunteers differ in ages and interests, as do the immigrant students. Time is spent in teaching the children the alphabet, word pronunciation, reading skills, vocabulary skills, or simple grammatical structures depending on the child's need in these areas.

The program has been successful in past years and has continued to be so. However, more help is needed. If you have a free hour or two after school, please consider the program. Knowledge of Cantonese is not a requirement since the idea of the program is to create an English speaking environment.

The experience of being a tutor is indescribable. One also has fun since the environment is always relaxed. To know that you are helping the children and that they are learning through your efforts is a reward in itself.

An Appreciation of Leonard Bernstein

Lisa Reynolds

Recently, Boston Latin School lost one of its graduates when he suffered a heart attack at the age of seventy-two. His name was Leonard Bernstein.

Bernstein, a great pianist, conductor, and composer, was born on August 28, 1918. The Lawrence native attended such great schools as BLS, Harvard University, and the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, where he studied conducting. Walter Piston, Fritz Reiner, and Serge Koussevitzky taught him to compose.

Mr. Bernstein created scores that connected him with New York, including "On the Town", "Wonderful Town", and "West Side Story". He was not known only for his musicals; he also composed the opera "Trouble in Tahiti" in 1952, the 1956 operetta "Candide", and 1965's "Chichester Psalms", which was for a chorus and an orchestra. Then there were the ballets: "Fancy Free" in 1944 and "The Dybbuk Variations" in 1974. There was also "Mass", which was for singers, dancers, and players, in 1971.

Mr. Bernstein had other accomplishments. Leonard Bernstein did not just compose and conduct; he taught us how to enjoy his works. One fan seems to have summed it up perfectly: "My piano teacher taught me how to read and play notes, but it was Bernstein who taught me to love music."

French Club

by Yue Yuan Zhang and Theresa Chen

The French Club is not exclusively for students of French, but for all who are interested in the French culture. This year is no exception. The coordinator of the club, French and German teacher Mrs. Conteh, has started off the year by donating a wonderful gingerbread house to be raffled off for the benefit of the club. At the same time, the club's annual Christmas party is planned for December 21. The party will be held at the French library; it will consist of a French movie, the singing of French Christmas carols, and, if one is really interested, Mrs. Conteh is teaching some French dances.

Then of course there is the fun and inexpensive trip to Quebec City, Canada, where the students will live with host families. Although the main purpose of the trip is to learn some French and to become acquainted with French customs, it certainly will not prevent one from having a fun-filled week with friends at the same time. Through the course of the year there will be other activities such as the occasional showing of French movies, picnics during the Spring, and most important of all, field trips to any artistic performances concerning the French club taking place in Boston in the up-coming year.

themselves shoving me in their anxiety to reach their next class. Often the book bags that are half their size and ride way up their backs will shove you. Although things may be different in that now the youngest in the school will now boot you out of line or ram you in the hall, I am sure their circumstances have not been altered. I am sure they are still uneasy in this new setting and must be thankful for the new cluster system that allows them to become acquainted with their peers more easily.

Now a group of approximately twenty sixies remain in their "cluster" and share many of the same classes. This program keeps them in continual contact. Although their classes do not consist entirely of the group alone and there are other students as well, their schedules are structured so that they are able to share a great number of classes. The innovative program has established the foundation for many friendships and also provides ample opportunities for peer instruction to those having difficulty.

though, an art editor and an art staff.

People might feel that the picture shouldn't be there, but it is. Mr. Roche, the faculty advisor, concluded, "If censorship was because of the quality of the content of the picture, then it was wrong. There is no good reason to censor this picture for lack of aesthetic value or the subject matter, which is rather harmless. The worst thing I can say about the content is that it is cute. [But the] administration has the right to censor if it is a legal matter, so the administration acted correctly."

The Drama Club's next production will be a one-act play presented for the Massachusetts High School Drama Festival in March. Directors Beth Dunfey and Sara Wolfson have tentatively decided on Christopher Durang's comedy "The Actor's Nightmare". The Drama Club will be competing with six other Boston area high schools. Three schools will be chosen to proceed past the preliminary round.

In the spring, the Drama Club hopes to present the classic high school musical "Grease". However, these plans are as yet somewhat indefinite. For more information about Drama Club activities, see Carolyn Kelley in room 104.

A-Team Yue Yuan Zhang and Theresa X Chen

On Tuesdays and Thursdays after school, one may look in room 237 and wonder if it is a math convention in process. Actually, the students are preparing for the Greater Boston Math League competitions. Each year Boston Latin School participates in the five math meets of the Eastern division. This year Boston Latin is the host to two of these meets. In addition to the regular meets, there is the annual invitational meet at Canton High School in mid-March. The state and the New England competitions are in May.

Thus far, three competitions have been held and Boston Latin's A-Team continues to hold first place in the Eastern division. Thanks to the efforts of A Team members, Paul Li, Clara Hwang, Ria Persad, and Diemanh Nguyen. Recognition should also be extended to all members of the Math Team for their individual performances. Boston Latin School ranks second in the entire Greater Boston Math League, second only to Canton High School.

If the team members consistently turn in the results they have contributed in the last meets, Mr. Durant and Mr. Stengel, the advisors of the Math Team, will be happy.

Clothes Drive by Connie Tom

During the Christmas holidays when it is cold out, wouldn't it be great to just have that extra shirt or sock to keep warm? Thanks to the Key Club Clothing Drive, that is possible.

From December 10-20, the Key Club sponsored a clothing drive. The clothing consisted of things such as shirts, shoes and socks. The donations amounted to about 15 bags. The clothing drive volunteers said the teachers and the students were very nice about giving clothing.

"The clothes drive is a really difficult thing to do and we are glad it was very successful," said Vivian Towe, senior Key Club President. The clothing will be shipped to a local goodwill to be given to the homeless and the needy.

The Key Club thanks all those who contributed to the drive; helping the club help the people of the city.

Across the Atlantic by Derek Lumpkins

This summer Wings, Latin's travel club, went on an unforgettable trip. Mrs. McCarthy, our leader, took Ivy Ali-Salaam, Renee Bergeron, Carol Donovan, her husband, and me to the countries of France, Switzerland, Italy, and Greece.

We landed at Charles de Gaulle airport around seven o'clock France time and eventually made our way into Paris. There was a McDonald's just outside the subway station, with traffic speeding by and people hurrying about.

In Paris, we saw all the famous sights from the Arc de Triomphe to the Louvre, but what really impressed me was the view from the Eiffel Tower. Although I only went to the second stage, the view was fantastic!

After three and a half days in Paris, we boarded the T.G.V. (the world's fastest train) and were whisked into the French and Swiss Alps. Geneva was our first stop in the Alps.

Our second Alpine stop was Chamonix, France at the foot of Mont Blanc, Europe's highest mountain. We arrived at Chamonix in the late afternoon and pitched our tents in a campground. Alpine weather is deceptive; mornings are warm and summerlike, but at night the temperature plummets to near freezing!

Around 8 o'clock we were in line to take the cable car up Mont Blanc. The view of the town below and the neighboring mountains made the cold bearable. Interlaken was the last Alpine town, and we stayed in a youth hotel much lower in altitude than Chamonix's campground.

laken West. Ost is calm and rural, while the West is more urban, but both share a coast on Laken Thun.

As in Geneva the water provides the area with its beauty. Under clear skies we sailed across the lake with mountains on all sides covered with lush green foliage and red-roofed houses dotting the slopes.

From Spiez we made our way into Italy, which offered us the cities of Verona, Florence, and Rome. Verona and Florence are old cities with narrow, winding streets, serving as the hubs of their areas.

In Verona there are several Roman ruins and parts of the city walls, and in Florence there is the Duomo, a huge cathedral with an orange dome and a high bell tower.

Rome was our next city. We saw the famous places, such as the Colosseum, the Forum, the Vatican, and St. Peter's Square and Basilica, but what I remember most was the catacombs just outside the city.

We spent the last week of the trip in Greece. Although we all had colds, we did manage to see the Acropolis and Monastraki in Athens, Gargarliano in the Peloponese, and the island of Mylomos in the Aegean Sea.

What really impressed me was the friendliness of the Greek people. Although I do not speak Greek, I still managed to communicate with them.

All in all, this trip was fabulous and it makes me want to return to Europe. If anyone reading this plans to go, don't go with a lot of presumptions, just a lot of film.

After losing 9 seniors last year, the girls' swim team looked like it was heading for a rebuilding year. However, with some new talent and hard work it finished with a 5-3 record over all and a 4-2 record in the league.

The highlight of the season was an upset win over arch-rival Wayland, whom Latin had never beaten. Another surprise was the down-to-the-last-minute, six-point loss to Lincoln-Sudbury, a strong contender not only in the Dual County League but also in the state.

At the Dual County League Championships Latin had a strong showing, finishing fourth, edged out by Wayland by only about thirty points. Sonia Millan, Alia Aly, Sarah Bohannon, Jen Stillman, Maureen O'Keefe, Caity O'Reilly, Courtney Dahill, Grace Walton, Joanna McKeige, Kathy Stanton, and Maureen Hickey did very well. Our only diver, Kara Chalmers, finished strong, placing eighth.

At the Sectional Championships Millan, Aly, O'Reilly, and Bohannon swam individually. Stanton, Hickey, O'Keefe, Stillman, Cheryl McMahon, and Amy Gwiazda had a great performance in the relays. Diver Chalmers did well in her competition.

Unfortunately, six seniors are graduating. We wish the best of luck to Irene Daly, Jill O'Malley, Sarah Ng, Kristin Reidt, Sarah Rana, and Connie Tom.

We want to congratulate the whole team and to thank the three captains this year: Senior Reidt and juniors Gwiazda and McMahon.

Girl's Basketball

by David Greenwood

The whole school is buzzing about this year's girls' basketball team. For the first time the girls will be playing a twenty-game, action-packed season. Westwood is the standout in this year's schedule. Coach Myers hopes to be competitive with this year's favorite, Concord-Carlisle.

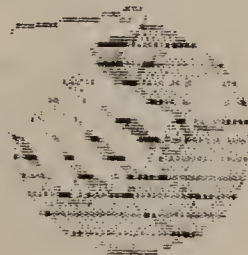

The varsity team is led by 5'8" junior forward Marianna Todesco, 5'10" junior forward Rosemary Powell, and 5'6" sophomore sensation, point guard Taniya Rattcliffe. A big surprise this year could be Theresa Russell, a 5'9" sophomore forward who runs as well as anyone in the league.

Coach Myers (87-40), shooting for his golden 100th victory, says the team has a legitimate shot at the Division 1 North finals and then at moving along to bigger and better things.

Coach Myers has a tough decision to make concerning try-outs this year. Out of sixty-five girls trying out, Myers has to pick twelve for the varsity team and fourteen for the junior varsity team. Sixties be on the lookout -- next year might bring the first girls' freshman team.

**Attention!!!****

Coach Myers shows his appreciation for players who have played for him in the past at Latin School by creating his own "Wall of Fame" on the bulletin board next to room 205.

THEY DID IT! Yes! The Boston Latin Football Team beat English once again this year, salvaging an injury plagued season for the Wolfpack.

The 1990 Football campaign was not as successful as was hoped, going 4-6 in the season. The Pack dropped their opener to Bishop Stry, 39-12. As the season progressed, Alan Cooper filled the void of injured Adilson Cardosa in grand fashion as Alan racked up the numbers at the tail-back position. Latin then won its first game of the season by defeating Bedford with Brendan Dever's hailmary pass to Dave McKenna. The following week, the Pack kept clawing away at Wayland, but finally lost the contest in the closing seconds of the game, as the Warriors prevailed, 16-12. Week four was successful for the Wolfpack. The team defeated Newton South 14-8. But despite a solid combined team effort, Latin lost at the hands of Catholic Memorial in a lackluster game(3-0).

As the second half of the season began the Wolfpack's record was 2-3 and the schedule did not get any easier. In week six, Acton rolled over Latin 34-19 in a second half rally by Acton. Week seven was highlighted by a close battle between the Wolfpack and the 1989 Division 3 Football Champs, Lincoln-Sudbury(20-13 Lincoln). Latin's effort once again proved unrewarding as they lost the following week to the speedy offense of Weston, 39-20. With two games left in the season, the Pack was not yet willing to give up. They marched into Concord and trounced Concord-Carlisle 46-12. Finally when Thanksgiving day came, it was once again time to face English in one of the oldest rivalries in High School football. And once again as per tradition Latin, led by the running of Adilson Cardosa, demolished English.

A highlight of this mediocre season was the election of six members of the Wolfpack to the 1990 Dual County League All-Star Team. The six were: Brendan Dever(QB), Dave McKenna(WR), Domenic Giammarco(DT), Gerald Noble(OG), Kamaul Reid(S) and Alan Cooper(LB).

Wrapping it up

Jessica Pepp and Jen Hannon

The 1990 fall season was one of great change for the BLS Girls' Soccer Team: they got a new coach, new uniforms, and a new record. Mike LaVigne's new tactics, combined with the hard work and determination of the team, finally paid off. On September 20, they won their first game in nine years, against Matignon, in a 3-0 shutout. The first half of the game was dominated by Latin, with goals from Marianna Todesco and Melissa Swain, making the score 2-0 at the end of the first half. In the second half, Jen Hannon scored, assisted by Dianne O'Connor, to make the final score 3-0. Latin's star goalie Michelle McCleary played an excellent game to keep the shutout.

The new attitude of the team was clear at the last game of the season. Due to huge puddles on the field, the game would have been cancelled and the season would have been over, if the girls had not tried to "bail out" all obstacles. They scored nine times as many goals as they had scored last year, shocking the opposing teams and coaches by the improvement.

Although it is only her first year on the team, Sarah Cassaro showed the most improvement by the end of the season. The team will be sad to say good-bye to its seven seniors: Michelle O'Brien, Kim Murray, Melissa Mills, Kathleen Birch, Christine Tighe, Ellen Lowre, and Katie Concannon. Their winning spirits and superior skills made the season a success.

Wolfpack Spirit

Lisa Reynolds and Areti Stamatou

This year's pep rallies were held in the new gym. Class III and class VI attended the first rally, followed by class II and class V. The seniors and freshmen attended the last rally, the longest of the three. Also, many graduates returned for the rally and the game.

Each rally began with a short greeting from Coach Costello and the introduction of the football team. The two captains of the Wolfpack Brendan Dever and Brian Allen stirred school spirit. Following the captain's talk, the pep rally enlivened the crowd with cheers. This was followed by the cheerleaders, who showed us that their Latin pride was alive and well.

When asked what Coach Costello thought about the rallies, he replied "All the rallies went very well." He also extended his gratitude to all the students for keeping the gym nice and clean. All three rallies went very well and were instrumental in us being successful in the game. The rallies are very important in promoting school spirit throughout the student body, and that the Thanksgiving with the Latin-English football classic is a unique and special time for all those connected with Boston Latin School.

Mike Cammarata, number 35 on the team, said, "It was good. It got the spirits up."

Some others said, "There was a lot of school spirit, and it was mostly shown by the cheerleaders and the pep squad." "It was noisy." "This rally was not as great as last year's, but it was good and full of Latin spirit."

The rallies boosted the spirits of the Latin team, and gave them the edge needed to beat English the next day, 14-6. Way to go, team!

Can Food Drive?

Mark Sheridan

The JFK Library Corps would like to thank everyone who contributed to the Canned Food Drive and who made the drive possible, especially Ms. C. Kelley.

Teachers and students donated almost one hundred fifty cans. After they were collected at Boston Latin, they were donated to the Boston Food Bank. The Boston Food Bank is a non-profit organization that distributes food to the homeless and the needy. The Food Bank also receives surplus and cosmetically damaged food from manufacturers and stores.

The JFK Library Corps is a community service program for youths aged eleven to nineteen. The Corps sponsors programs throughout Boston to promote social awareness and involvement of youth in the community. The Corps is currently sponsoring several different projects for students at Boston Latin. One project involves volunteering once every other week at the Boston Food Bank. Another is preparing for Law Day 1991 with the Roxbury Youthworks. In a third high school students spend time with preschool and Day care children after school.

"I have been involved in the Corps for four years and it has been a great experience. I have met many new friends. The corps has made a profound difference in my life by giving me the power to make a difference."

If you like to become involved in the JFK Library Corps you can either call Margaret or Marco at 436-9986 or contact Mark Sheridan in homeroom 101.

Student Bulletin

Senior Class

- Yearbook pictures are still being collected. Please hand in your pictures as soon as possible.
- Baby pictures will also be collected soon.
- The Yearbook will be partial color. Black and white pictures are not needed.
- Any seniors who want to volunteer their time to help clean the garbage, please see Tim.
- Seniors interested in volunteering at hospitals, please see Tim for more information.
- Please help support the Yearbook and Class Committee if you want to lower the costs for the yearbook and the prom.
- Beware of the A.P. Gringe that stole Christmas! Payment for the May A.P. exams are due by utility period Thursday, January 31, 1991 in room 133. Fee waiver requests are due by January 10, 1991.
- The Senior Prom will take place on June 4, 1991, at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Junior Class

- Juniors beat seniors in Powderpuff game: 20-6
- Class rings arriving in February
- Class trip to Montreal in April
- The Junior Prom will be on Thursday, May 23, 1991 at the Westin Hotel at Copley. The selected DJ is Audio XTC. The cost for ticket is approximately anywhere from $100 to $150 depending on amount raised from fundraising.
- Note the notice about AP exams mentioned in the Senior Class Bulletin.

Sophomore Class

Sophomore Semi - Plans for the sophomore semi-formal are already underway. The location has not yet been selected, but the dance is scheduled for April 26, 1991. The sophomore semi-formal committee, with Mrs. Hantout as the advisor, is planning events to raise funds. One such event was the dance for the 7th, 8th, and 9th graders. It was held in the cafeteria on Friday, December 7th. Another fundraiser was the sale of Christmas messages. The committee encourages students to support further fund-raising events.

Magazine Drive Harmony Woo

In the Magazine Drive of October/November 1990, the senior class was the only class to reach their quota, selling more subscriptions than the number of students in their class. Six thousand dollars was raised, of which 98 seniors raised 75%. Faye Yee of Class of '91 sold 22 subscriptions, while the highest number of subscriptions brought in by a junior was 19. Congratulations to homeroom 104 for selling 49 magazine subscriptions.

From the total amount raised, $1500 was donated to the senior class, and the rest went to support activities.

Kusu Amine Nippon

by Connie Tom

Kusu Anime Nippon is the newest addition to the clubs here at Boston Latin School. Translated from Japanese into English, it could only mean little pieces of Japanese animation.

Started during the fall by senior officers Ray Chow, Steve Yu, and U Jin Wong, Kusu Anime Nippon, the animation club, has about 20 members and continues to grow. Ray says the club is fun and educational. The meetings are held on Fridays so students can kick back and relax after a long week of school.

So what happens at the animation club? Members view Japanese cartoons never before seen here in the US. Most of the cartoons are in Japanese, but some are in English. The animation tapes are from comic conventions and are similar to the Robotech cartoons that are no longer seen on television.

Other types of cartoons will also be shown in the future. Suggestions are always welcomed.

When Friday rolls around, come check out Kusu Anime Nippon. Meetings are in Room 132. What's best yet is that membership is free. Not only will you have fun, but you will also have the chance to meet others like you who are interested in animation.
